

COMPETENCES

The objectives of the Erasmus Mundus Master's Degree in International Humanitarian Action are

- To provide the academic profile and professional competences to the personnel in the field of humanitarian action and international cooperation.
- To bring together the academic resources and cultural traditions of seven European universities by encouraging mobility among them.
- To contribute to the quality and visibility of European higher education.
- To become a world reference for education and professionalisation in the field of humanitarian action, as it enables joint degrees for students and researchers from third countries.
- Contribute to the development of a research profile that will enable the creation of knowledge in relation to humanitarian action in its different aspects and processes, in order to early warning to development and from its causes to its consequences and short- and long-term impacts.
