

PSYCHOLOGY

Graduate profile

The Bachelor's Degree in Psychology is designed to produce psychology professionals who are committed to their profession, knowledgeable about the foundations and theoretical frameworks, techniques and instruments for psychological assessment, which will enable them to conduct assessments and develop diagnoses in each area of psychology. These graduates will become practising professionals who will stand out thanks to a sense of ethics, empathic sensitivity and understanding of diversity, while being capable of conducting carefully planned and thought out autonomous research. They should be equipped to make well-reasoned judgements, opinions and reports, solve problems in a creative, innovative manner, and contribute to advancing and maintaining high professional standards.

This programme also emphasises the use of new technologies that contribute to effective communication (oral or written) with users, patients, other practitioners and society as a whole.
